FOR IMMEDIATE RELEASE

Boulder Channel One Announces live Show at The Original Pancake House in Boulder

Channel One Networks will shoot a “CU back to school” live/streaming broadcast at The Original Pancake House in Boulder from 9:30am until 12:00pm, Saturday August 22, 2009

Boulder, Colorado-August 19, 2009-Channel 1 Networks LLC announced it will be live streaming a three hour internet TV show to commemorate the incoming and returning University of Colorado students and faculty. The live show will be hosted by Channel One Networks CEO, Jann Scott. The show will be streaming on the popular Boulder internet television Channel, <http://www.boulderchannel1.com>.

The live show will celebrate the new and returning University of Colorado students. The Original Pancake House will be giving taste samples of their various styles of pancakes and other delicious food. In addition to catering special events and gatherings, The Original Pancake House often serves University of Colorado students including the college basketball and football team. According to Channel One Networks CEO, Jann Scott, “There should be hundreds of Students and non-students alike down there, it is going to be a blast, we have been planning this for a while now and I personally can’t wait to have some interesting interviews, and pancakes of course.”

Channel One Networks will be setting up their live streaming video equipment in front of The Original Pancake House and start the live show at 9:30am Saturday August 22, 2009, during the show there will be interviews with local CU students and other patrons. The Original Pancake House is inviting students and non-students alike to join in the festivities celebrating “back to school” for the University of Colorado at Boulder students and faculty.

About Channel One Networks:

The Channel One Networks was founded by Jann Scott, a Boulder tech mogul with decades of experience in internet, television, print, video and radio news broadcasting. In 2005 his company created and soft launched The World Channels. Scott then created an entire satellite system of TV channels online. Channel One Networks is internet only television designed for the local community, however through national media partnerships, weekly shows are aired on traditional television. The staff is a mix of seasoned advertising media types and young hip designers. Channel One Networks relies on sound financial and production models that utilize the unique and upcoming social platform of internet television.
